

Amero nothing new to Truth Radio

Get ready for a change in your money. The new currency will be called the “Amero.” Photos of the new “Amero” are available on the Internet. Coins are already being produced by the US Mint. The new currency reportedly will be issued for the non-nation conglomeration of “Canada-UnitedStates-Mexico” after the borders between those countries have been erased. Of course, the name “Amero” echoes the European unified currency, the “Euro.”

With amazing foresight, sometime in the early 1990's, famous Tax Realist (the IRS and Federal Court called him a Tax Protester) Paul Bell of Taft, California, saw this change (pardon the pun) coming. Paul had plenty of time to study monetary policy. He had been unlawfully imprisoned¹ for eight years and later, again a political prisoner, he served another two or three years. (He died early in the new century.) Resolute in his belief that his research was accurate, and many years before Congressman Ron Paul publicized the same evidence, Bell came to Truth Radio (Then Radio Station KDNO, Delano, California) with a proposal. He wanted to mint a pure silver coin that would shame the Federal Reserve's fraudulent currency. So, KDNO purchased genuine silver rounds from Sunshine Mining, the most reputable producer of blank silver coins, and Paul crafted a manual table top minting machine, using forms he designed. Then he hand-pressed dozens of “Amero” coins.

Bell's “Amero” weighs one ordinary ounce (avoirdupois rather than troy). It is not “Legal Tender.” Bell labeled the coin “Public Tender,” avoiding any accusation that it pretends to be issued by the government. It is not a substitute for coins produced by the U.S. Mint made of base metals. Bell, with good intentions, made the error of placing a U.S. Dollar designation on the coin. He reasoned that if he used the word “Par” he would not be accused of seeking to mimic issuances of the Mint. Thus, the coin's “Par” grew out of line with its U.S. Dollar equivalent as the value of the U.S. Dollar has diminished. The coin never became well known enough to make that an issue. It should be viewed as merely a medallion.

Recently, our limited supply came to light. Want one? Look up the spot price of silver. The “Amero” medallion is about 90 percent as heavy as a troy ounce. Offer a donation to cover that value plus postage. Truth Radio will be happy to send you an “Amero” in return for your donated support. The “Amero” has three kinds of REAL value. It is made of pure silver, it is a memorial to the courage of Paul Bell, and it is a collectible produced more than a decade before the official “Amero.”
